ALLIED FEDERAL CREDIT UNION | WINTER 2024

It's Time for Your Finances to Hit the Gym

A lot of people make New Year's resolutions to go to the gym and get in shape, but you can't forget to have healthy finances too. Make it your 2024 resolution to strengthen those money muscles and lift your savings high. You don't have to do it alone, either.

AlliedFCU has some great coaching methods to help you achieve your growth goals this year.

Let's look at a few:

Holiday Club Accounts

Use a Holiday Club Account to make sure you don't wind up in a financial hole when the holiday season comes around. Have money transferred to the account automatically every time you receive your direct deposit. In November, we'll automatically transfer the funds from this account into your checking account, along with your earned dividends, to pay for next year's holidays.

Save to Win

A lottery with no risks? That's what the Save to Win Account gives you! Every time you save $25, you get an entry into a drawing with prizes ranging from $25 to $5,000. You also continue earning dividends on your savings. It's basically a financial cheat day.

Credit Builder Loan

Even if you fell off the financial fitness wagon a while ago, you're never too far gone. A Credit Builder Loan helps rebuild your credit history. This loan deposits $1,000 into your savings account, and you pay back the loan over 12 months. Paying off the loan leaves you with $1,000 (plus dividends) in savings and a more positive credit score with the three bureaus.

Free Credit Checks

All fitness journeys require you to track your progress. Do free quarterly credit checks and stay on track with any credit score goals you have. Your report will tell you where to improve (late payments, percentage of credit used, hard inquiries, etc.). You'll also quickly notice fraud if it happens. Get your free report here: annualcreditreport.com.

We hope you succeed on your 2024 financial resolutions!
